Dear Sirs:

You are now a subscriber to the Journal of Economic and Business History and are receiving copies made up of paper containing 30% of rags. We have a limited number of copies of 100%-rag paper which we plan to distribute without any extra charge to those libraries which preserve and bind their journals.

If you will write to me personally to the effect that you would like to receive the 100%-rag copies, I shall see that you are put on a special list of libraries, henceforth to receive such copies without additional charge.

Presumably you have already received three numbers of the 30%-rag paper. If you will send the three numbers to the Harvard University Press during the month of June or July, that Press will return to you three copies of the 100%-rag paper. We shall expect that you will pay the cost of sending to the Press, as the Press will pay the cost of sending to you.

Please note these two conditions: first of all, you should write to me, to the effect that you intend to bind and preserve the Journal, in order to get the name of your library on our preferred list, and, secondly, we reserve the right not to send copies provided our preferred list is already filled up.

Very truly yours,

N. S. B. Gras

Mr. N. S. B. Gras, Managing Editor,
Journal of Economic and Business History,
Harvard University, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:

Responding to your letter of June 8th, as it is our intention to bind the Journal of Economic and Business History, I am very glad to avail myself of your proposal to substitute rag paper for the ordinary edition. If my application is received by you sufficiently early to warrant your placing this library on the list of those who receive the 100% rag paper edition, and you will inform me of this fact, I will have the three copies already received sent you during July as you suggest.

Appreciating your having offered this opportunity to this Library, I beg to subscribe myself

Very truly yours,

Librarian
